

I am in favor of eliminating the Morse Code requirement from the Amateur Radio Service.

The service is now, more than ever, important to the security of our nation and the more trained radio operators we have the better our communications will be in a time of need.

I would hope, however, that we retain sub bands for those of us who enjoy and are proficient in CW and use it almost exclusively. There are still many who feel as I do that CW is not only a good skill to have but it will do the job when every other mode fails.

Thank you
